Self Government, Good Joke.
McAdoo Is No Quitter.
The President's Son.
Warning to Parents.

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1924, by Star Company)

Wht we call SELF-government may not be real, but it is at least amusing. Statesmen, of the political boss type, spent yesterday "conferring," which means discussing various deals, to decide on a democratic candidate. After they decide, you will have the pleasure of getting excited about the man thus chosen, and will vote for him—unless you happen to belong to another party.

What the PEOPLE want means nothing. The insiders ask, "Upon whom can we agree? What man, sufficiently eligible to save us from being ridiculous, will suit us all, and those for whom we work?"

Nobody asks, in that inside conference, "whom do the voters want?" or "what candidate has deserved a nomination?" It is purely a question of political expediency, and agreement among bosses. If they can find a man that will stand hitched, keep his promises to the men that name him, regardless of platform promises, that is the man you will get for candidate.

Occasionally, as in 1896, when Bryan nominated himself, a man not selected by the insiders gets the nomination. But that happens rarely, and when it does happen, the bosses on both sides unite to beat such an upstart.

In this case, just one thing seems agreed upon. McAdoo, who came to the convention with the biggest support, almost half of all the delegates, must get out.

All bosses and the "big men" they work for are agreed on THAT.

Whether they can put the program through you will know, perhaps, today or tomorrow.

The suggestion that McAdoo quit "for the sake of party harmony" is interestingly preposterous. McAdoo, of course, will not do anything as yellow as that. His men may quit him, if THEY are yellow. But he will stick.

Newspaper men that watched him fighting high finance, when he forced through the Hudson tunnels, and when he run the railroads and regulated bond interest rates against Wall streets's mandate know that he is no quitter.

McAdoo has doubled his strength throughout the country, since the convention began. Those that know him only by dim hearsay, know ONE definite thing now.

They know that the whole gang of financial and corporation highbinders hate him, and want him beaten, no matter who else may be chosen. And that is about as good a recommendation as the voters would ask for any candidate. It is the recommendation to which La Follette owes his influence, and to which he will owe a big vote, without the help of any party.

The public interest is divided between the democratic convention and the White house, with deepest concern and sympathy concentrated upon the president and his wife, in their great anxiety.

Fortunately the news, as it came yesterday, would save the boy's life.

All fathers and mothers should be put on their guard by the illness of the president's son. The boy wore shoes, or sandals, with no stockings, as thousands of boys and girls do, every day, in summer.

THAT IS MOST DANGEROUS.

The earth, everywhere, is impregnated with dangerous germs, including the germ of lockjaw, and innumerable other germs that may cause blood poisoning, if a slight wound be neglected.

The feet, and especially the toes, are more easily infected than any other external part of the body.

Cramped for generations in shoes, deprived of their natural blood supply, very often, the toes lose their power of resistance to germ attack. Constantly you read of blood poisoning that starts in the foot.

Wearing shoes without stockings, neglecting a cut, or blister, as children often do, any germs accumulated are persistently and continuously rubbed into the tissues and into the blood circulation, with no protecting stocking between the foot and the leather.

The pluckier the child, the more probability of a neglected wound. And

PRESIDENT'S SON IS NEAR END OF BRAVE STRUGGLE

AFTER HOLDING OWN THROUGH NIGHT CALVIN COOLIDGE, JR., IS NEAR DEATH THIS AFTERNOON.

BULLETIN

Washington, July 7—The last point of gravity was reached this afternoon in the condition of Calvin Coolidge, jr., son of the president, who is suffering from blood poisoning at Walter Reed army hospital here.

(By Associated Press)

Washington, July 7—After a night during which the patient was said to have been near death in three separate sinking spells, Calvin Coolidge, Jr., son of the president, was still fighting bravely for his life early today, with his safe passage to the early morning hours giving slightly increased hope of his recovery.

It was announced shortly after 7 o'clock this morning that the president's son was "somewhat more comfortable" after having passed through the hours regarded as marking the most critical stage of his illness from septic poisoning.

Survival a Miracle

One of the physicians who remained in attendance described his survival of the night as a "miracle" adding that he now had a "bare fighting chance" for recovery. "The condition that gives hope," he said, "is that no vital organ has broken down under the strain."

The physician confirmed the report that blood transfusion had been resorted to about 12 o'clock, and said that the boy had reacted well to the transfusion and other things done for him.

While it was stated in one quarter that oxygen had been administered during the sinking spells early today, physicians refused to comment on that phase of the case.

The president and Mrs. Coolidge, who remained at the Walter Reed Army hospital near their son's bedside throughout the night, were called at each unfavorable development.

State of Mind Helps

The condition of the 16-year-old youth in his battle for life was traced by the physicians who declared that this, together with his conviction that they and his parents were doing everything possible to bring him through, was a psychological element that meant much. Calvin, Jr., was said to have been conscious most of the night, although at times he was delirious from the raging fever induced by the poison which swept through his system unchecked for the first four days.

The attending physicians, who discussed the outlook early today, said developments in the case had proved that the only possible method of treatment had been followed from the first and that the diagnoses of bone infection had been correct.

Dr. John Dever, the Philadelphia specialist called in the case, returned to the city last night, but Dr. John Kolmer, blood specialist, who was summoned from Philadelphia for a consultation yesterday, remained with the patient.

Jewish Children Pray

New York, July 7—Several hundred Jewish children gathered in the institutional synogog, Talmud Torah, today and prayed for the recovery of Calvin Coolidge, Jr., the president's son.

County Highways Carried Heavy Traffic July 4

Traffic census taken by Wood county highway officials July Fourth at the junction of state road 18 and old state road 13, west of Auburndale, revealed that 1,555 Wisconsin and 238 foreign cars passed over 18 at this point during the day and that 828 Wisconsin and 44 foreign cars passed over 13. The count was taken from 6:00 a. m. until 11:00 p. m.

Committed to Asylum

(By Associated Press)

White Plains, N. Y., July 7—Clarence Baring, accused of trying to murder his wife by putting disease germs in her food, today was committed to the Mattaawan state hospital for the insane by the county judge.

52-Year-Old Man Dies In Saving Two

(By Associated Press)

Rhinelander, July 7.—C. A. Dunham, 52-year-old interior decorator of Chicago, was drowned in full view of his wife late yesterday in Twin Lakes, near here, after he had heroically saved two girls from drowning.

Dunham was standing near the shore of the lake fully clothed when he heard the girls call for help. He jumped into the lake and swam out to them and succeeded in assisting the drowning girls to a rock nearby. A moment later he sank and never came up again.

JOHNSON WILL RUN AGAINST LEVITAN

FORMER STATE TREASURER ANNOUNCES HIS CANDIDACY; HAS PRAISE FOR HIGHWAY WORK

(By Associated Press)

Madison, Wis., July 7.— Henry Johnsen, Oconto county, for ten years state treasurer of Wisconsin, today announced his candidacy for that position on the Republican ticket against State Treasurer Solomon Levitan.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Johnson declared he did not intend to run but that since no opposition has appeared to the present treasurer, he decided to make the race.

Mr. Johnson announced himself as standing on a "platform of economy," declaring that although the present administration has "preached economy" it has not practiced it.

Praises Road Work

Speaking of the highway system, Johnson said:

"The wonderful system of road building and maintenance in the last few years for which, regardless of political affiliations we have to acknowledge, great credit is due to the highway commission is an accomplishment in which we all take great pride. Best of all with the great amount of money expended, no suggestion has ever been made that there has been any graft connected with the highway department."

Charges that state timber lands were sold for less than their value and that state depositaries were used for personal gain were made by Johnson against the present administration. Johnson said he would "avoid the subject of nationality," during his campaign.

Levitan Answers

Madison, Wis., July 7.—Claims that there are numerous misstatements in the charges made by Henry Johnson in his announcement for state treasurer, are made by State Treasurer Solomon Levitan in a statement issued today. He said he would answer the statement in detail during the campaign.

"All I have to say at this time is that since I have been treasurer, I have collected thousands of dollars for the state which should have been collected while my opponent was in office," Levitan's statement said. "I have tried to run the office efficiently and have cooperated to keep down taxes."

Mr Levitan will start an active campaign this week.

SOCIALIST PARTY LEADERS VOTE TO BACK LA FOLLETTE

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS THAT ORGANIZATION GIVE FULL SUPPORT TO WISCONSIN SENATOR IN CAMPAIGN

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, O., July 7—The socialist party of America went into the second day of its national convention here today confronted with the task of debating and voting upon a report of a special committee of 15 recommending that it indorse the independent presidential candidacy of Senator Robert M. La Follette.

The committee voted 15 to 2 to make this recommendation. The fact that it is composed of outstanding leaders of the party, selected by the convention yesterday from 23 delegates nominated from the floor and voted upon by individual delegates, was considered significant.

Six Recommendations

The committee report made six specific recommendations, as follows:

1. That this convention concur in the endorsement by the conference for progressive political action of the presidential candidacy of Senator La Follette on the platform submitted by him.

"The convention, however, specifically declares that the socialist party firmly adheres to the cardinal principles of socialism as set forth in the platforms and declarations of principles adopted at this and previous conventions of the socialist party," says the recommendation.

2. That it authorizes the national executive committee to indorse the candidate for vice-president to be chosen as Senator La Follette's running mate.

3. That the socialist party requests an increased representation on the enlarged national committee of the conference.

Join With Independents

4. That in the coming campaign the socialist party cooperate with the conference in the national election and in all such state and local elections in which the independent labor candidates are nominated with the cooperation of the state and local socialist party organizations.

5. That the socialist party send a full representation to the convention to be held in January, 1925, for the purpose of considering the formation of a permanent and independent new party.

Jury Is Selected for Mrs. Gross Murder Trial

(By Associated Press)

Florence, Wis., July 7.—A jury consisting of eighteen men and four women was selected this morning to hear the trial of Mrs. Florence Gross charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of her husband, William, on August 19, 1923. Trial of the case began this morning and it is expected that half of the prosecution witnesses will be heard this afternoon.

Street Car, Bus Collide

(By Associated Press)

Superior, Wis., July 7.—Five persons were injured when a street car rammed Duluth-Ashland bus No. 16 on the Superior side of the inter-state bridge shortly after 11 p. m. Sunday. The bus was bound for Duluth at the time of the crash.

Former Merrill High School Principal Will Come Here

LOUIS A. STRUCK CHOSEN TO TAKE CHARGE OF LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL FOR YEAR 1924-25.

Louis A. Struck, who for the past three years has been principal of the high school at Merrill, was chosen principal of the Lincoln high school by the teachers and texts committee of the school board on Saturday, it is announced by Julius Winden, city superintendent of schools. Mr. Struck will fill the place left vacant by the decision of the school board not to reengage Principal C. A. Hollister and by the recent resignation of William Harker, who was chosen to fill the place.

The new principal has had nine years of experience in school work and received the degree of bachelor of philosophy from the University of Wisconsin in 1921. His experience, besides the three years spent at Merrill, includes two years as an instructor in Gale college and one year as principal of the junior high school at Winona, Minn.

Britain And France Work For Agreement; MacDonald Will Visit French Capital

Paris, July 7.—Paris and London governments are working assiduously to build up a united thought before the convening of the inter-allied conference the middle of the month. Count DeSpaulaire, French ambassador to Great Britain, has arrived from London to enlighten the French people as to the latest British views of the situation.

Premier MacDonald of Great Britain informed Premier Herriot here today that he would arrive in Paris tomorrow afternoon to confer with him regarding the proposed inter-allied conference at London next week.

The British premier's telegram to this effect took the political world by surprise, all the more so in view of the fact that M. Herriot has an appointment for 3 p. m. tomorrow to reply to interpolations in the senate of the very subject Mr. MacDonald is coming to discuss.

Former Stevens Point Man Killed by Vampire Autoist

LEO MEYERS, 21, FOUND LYING IN UNCONSCIOUS CONDITION ON HIGHWAY 18 SATURDAY NIGHT; HOLD SUSPECTS

Run down and left to die on state road 18, northwest of Stevens Point, Saturday night, Leo Meyers, former Stevens Point young man, died at St. Michaels hospital, Stevens Point, early Sunday morning, after being taken to the hospital by motorists who found him lying in the road in an unconscious condition at about 1:30 a. m. Three Chicago youths are being held at Milwaukee for questioning, their car answering the description of a car that was seen in the neighborhood of the accident Saturday night.

Have Meager Clue

Stevens Point authorities stated today that Meyers, who formerly resided in Stevens Point and was back home for a visit over the Fourth, was walking toward Stevens Point after attending a barn dance when struck by the "vampire" autoist who refused to stop to give aid to the stricken man. Tracks left by the automobile on the shoulder of the concrete highway clearly revealed the type of tires used on the car and Stevens Point authorities, upon hearing of the discovery of the body, immediately wired all principal cities to the south, asking that a car occupied by three young men and equipped with a certain make of tires be stopped and the occupants held for further questioning. The car was found by Milwaukee police and the three occupants were placed in jail while awaiting the arrival of a deputy sheriff from Stevens Point. The driver of the car which brought Meyers to the Stevens Point hospital accompanied the officer to Milwaukee as it was he who gave police the description of the men and car under suspicion.

It is thought that Meyers was struck at about one o'clock a. m. He was found lying in the road at about 1:30 o'clock and was immediately taken to St. Michaels hospital where he died shortly after arrival without regaining consciousness.

Two Others Injured

At about the same time that Meyers died two other victims of auto accidents arrived at the hospital for treatment. They were Leo Worzella and Osia Doka, both of Stevens Point. They were injured, Doka the most severly, when the Ford coupe in which they were riding went into the ditch, about two miles north of the point where Meyer's body was found, and struck a tree, the top of the coupe being torn off. Both men were cut and bruised about the head while Doka also is suffering with a broken arm. Both are expected to recover.

Perry Will Not Enter Race for Governorship

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee, July 7—Charles Perry, Wauwatosa, whose candidacy for the republican nomination as governor was advanced in a campaign by friends, was formally withdrawn from the race and will file his name for reelection as assemblyman from the Sixteenth district, he announced today.

Three Are Given Two-Year Sentences for Liquor Plot

Mobile, Ala., July 7—Former Chief of Police P. J. O'Shaughnessy ex-deputy sheriff G. L. Donaghue, and P. H. Kearns, attorney, were sentenced to two years in the federal prison at Atlanta in federal courts this morning following their conviction last spring in the "rum ring" case of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

Oxford Woman Is Seeking Seat in State Assembly

Madison, Wis.—Wisconsin may set a precedent this fall by electing a woman to the legislature for the first time with two women now in the field for assembly seats.

Mrs. Ellen D. Megow, Oxford, has announced her candidacy for the assembly from Adams and Marquette counties. She is the only candidate for the position who has announced from that district so far.

Mrs. Louis Kahlenberg, wife of a University of Wisconsin professor, has also announced her candidacy from the Madison district. Three men are already in the field opposing Mrs. Kahlenberg in the race for the assembly seat.

A. R. Hirst to Open Wood County Campagin July 10

Wisconsin Rapids' 1924 political campaign will be off to an auspicious start Thursday, July 10, when A. R. Hirst, former state highway engineer and now candidate for the office of governor, opposing J. J. Blaine, present incumbent, and George Comings, lieutenant governor of the state at the present time, will appear in this city during the evening in a hall yet to be selected and at the Nepco mills during the noon hour. Wisconsin Rapids friends of Mr. Hirst were instrumental in bringing him here to officially open his campaign in Wood county and are making arrangements for his appearance before local audiences. The hall in which Mr. Hirst will give his address and the time will be announced later by those in charge.

Illinois Physician Slain by Son in Fit of Anger

Dixon, Ill., July 7—Dr. James Durien of Stewart, 56, one of Lee county's most respected physicians, was shot and killed by his son in a fit of anger at his home Sunday evening. Refusal of the young man to answer a question asked by his father is supposed to have led to the shooting. The boy arose, procured a shot gun and fired through the screen killing his father.

Given Fine and Costs for Driving Car While Drunk

Emil Ziegler, arrested July Fourth by Deputy George Favell, Pittville, on a charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, appeared in Judge E. N. Pomainville's court Saturday afternoon where he pleaded guilty to the charge and was given a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $25.89. Only the fact that the boy's father is now in jail awaiting trial on a moonshine charge and that the boy is needed to help work on the farm in the town of Wood saved him from a heavier fine and jail sentence, Judge Pomainville said today.

Glorious Fourth Was Dry State Commissioner Says

Madison, Wis., July 7.—Fourth of July was a "dry" day, as far as state prohibition agents were able to discern, according to Herman W. Sachtjen, commissioner of prohibition. Commissioner Sachtjen said today reports from deputies over the state indicated there was little law violation at centers where celebrations were held.

Deputies of the state department were warned to be on the lookout for violations.

After the 82nd ballot the convention adjourned to 8:30 tonight.

BULLETIN

Madison Square Garden, N. Y., July 7.—By action of the democratic national convention itself today all delegates were released from their pledges and instructions on presidential candidates.

The action of the convention did not affect the two-thirds rule or the unit rule. By its action the convention approved the stand of the minority candidates, including Governor Smith. Mr. McAdoo's counter proposal did not come up for a vote.

(By Associated Press)

Madison Square Garden, N. Y., July 7.—Late today a vote was forced in the democratic national convention on the resolution adopted by 15 minority candidates holding that all delegates should be released. The vote came on a motion of former governor Gilchrist of Florida and over the technical objections interposed by Gavin McNab of San Francisco, a McAdoo leader.

Roll Call Needed

Earlier in the day the convention had brushed aside consideration of the resolution of the 15 minority candidates and the counter-proposal of Mr. McAdoo. Apparently the body was full of fight and unyielding, but five more tedious ballots in the steaming Madison Square Garden took some of the belligerency out of the delegates and when they came to vote on the resolution as it finally came before the convention the vote was so close that Chairman Walsh was unable to determine who had it and ordered a roll call.

Releases Delegates

The resolution upon the adoption of which the convention voted was as follows:

"Resolved that the time has arrived when in the opinion of this democratic convention all delegates should be and are hereby released from any pledges or instruction of any kind whatever regarding the nomination of a candidate for the presidency."

Madison Square Garden, N. Y., July 7.—Still divided into non-majority groups, the democratic national convention returned today to its task of selecting a presidential nominee with its course undecided.

The first business was to receive a report from Permanent Chairman Walsh and National Chairman Hull of the conference with representatives of 16 aspirants for the presidential nomination. The report as drafted contained the declaration, signed by all candidates excepting William G. McAdoo, releasing their delegations conditionally upon obligation of the unit and two-thirds rules and upon agreement for the progressive elimination of the minor candidates.

The report was the sole accomplishment of the week end conference of Walsh and Hull, and opinion differed as to whether the report was any accomplishment at all.

Some of the McAdoo people went into the session believing that little could be accomplished and that after a parliamentary wrangle the situation would revert to the status of Saturday.

Hopes for McAdoo Breakup

Norman E. Mack, one of the four managers of Smith, said he saw no change in the situation except that

QUALIFICATION FOR OFFICE

Some little hint of the bitterness which is certain to characterize the approaching state campaign is contained in the announcement of Henry Johnson, former state treasurer, that he will oppose Solomon Levitan, the present incumbent, for the republican nomination. We have no way of checking the accuracy of most of Mr. Johnson's accusations, and hence shall withhold comment until they have been confined or proved false by the developments of the campaign.

Mr. Johnson, however, said a few things about the political situation in this state which are worth attention:

I sometimes sympathize with La-Follette. Candidates who during every campaign use him or his name as a stepping stone to come into office know full well that except for him they would fall by the wayside. In my humble way I have perhaps done as much for La Follette as any other man in Wisconsin, and yet I have never asked him for a favor. A man's fitness should be the standard and not the popularity of others.

What Mr. Johnson says is true. Almost every man who lifts his head to run for office in this state claims to be a La Follette man. It is up to the voters, friends and foes of the senator alike, to find some other basis for selection than meaningless professions of allegiance to a man.

boyish courage, unfortunately, is no protection against germ attack.

Children with feet completely bare are in less danger. The sole of the foot becomes hardened. There is no chafing of the skin, no rubbing of germs into and through the cuticle. Feet bare compel caution in walking and running. And from a bare foot, rushing through grass and weeds, germs are rubbed away, not held and rubbed in.

How do the English hold their great empire together? How do they keep 300,000,000 Asiatics in order, with only 100,000 Britons in all India? You get an answer, in the death in China of Edwin C. Hawley, and the action taken by the commander of his British majesty's ship, Cockchafer.

Hawley, murdered by Chinese junkmen—which means piratical seamen, NOT dealers in "junk"—was not even a British subject. He was "only" an American, but he was employed by a British firm, and that was enough for the British sea captain.

He landed his men, compelled the Chinese authorities to execute two of the Chinese junkmen as a little lesson to the others. And then he compelled every one of the high Chinese officials of the Szeechwan province to walk humbly behind the hearse, at the murdered American's funeral.

The Chinese authorities "protest" against such rudeness by the commander of the British gunboat, but that won't do them any good.

Our state department "makes representations" about the murder of an American citizen and that won't bother China.

What impresses the Chinese and others scattered around the world is the simple directness of a Briton, when he thinks his nationality has been insulted. "Seest thou a man diligent in his business, he shall stand before kings."

A man that is not diligent and earnest in his business, where British dignity is concerned, does not stand well before the British king.

Miss Wills, the wonderful young girl from the wonderful California climate, has shown extraordinary and precocious power against the crack players of Europe. She and Mrs. George Wightman on Saturday won the championship in the womens doubles in England.

These victories mean to this country much more than mere athletic victory. The brain does more than the muscles in a game of quickness and skill. Every movement of the muscle starts in the brain. Speed depends on mental power.

That is why the French are so proud of the marvelous Mlle. Lenglen. She typifies in her way the power of the French brain.

'Twixt Devil and Sea

(Marshfield Daily News)

Vesper, Arpin and Auburndale have put to us a pertinent question: "How is it that Marshfield allows the city of Pittsville to dictate to it policies which will not conform with the friendly relations which have always existed between Marshfield and Vesper, Arpin and Auburndale?"

The question, of course, grows out of the recent episode involving a signboard at Seneca Corners directing traffic to Marshfield via Vesper, Arpin and Auburndale. Pittsville protested at the sign; J. H. Cundy, president of our Chamber of Commerce, said the sign would come down, and later, with local influence behind him, said the sign would not come down. At all events, the sign has been taken down now, the directors of the chamber apparently having decided that way.

Now the situation is as muddled as it was in the beginning, if not more so. Representatives of the three towns, Auburndale, Arpin and Vesper, declare that if Marshfield "got in deep" when it put the sign up, this city is "in up to its neck" now that the sign has been removed. "Why is it," they ask "that Marshfield has slapped our towns in the face, yielding to Pittsville regardless of our interests?"

Well, we are frank to confess we can't satisfactorily answer that question, nor explain comfortably just the why and wherefore of the whole controversy. It's rather embarrassing to be waited on by a delegation of our good friends from Auburndale, Arpin and Vesper when they come with such a "poser" of a query.

We believe the subject should be worked over again, this time by a Chamber of Commerce meeting of all members and all others who care to come. Some local business men, wholesalers for the most part, complain that their products were boycotted by Pittsville merchants when the sign appeared. That, of course, is a matter to be considered; yet it should be pointed out that there are more retailers in Auburndale, Arpin and Vesper than there are in Pittsville who presumably are in Marshfield trading territory, and who knows but what they might start some such similar action now that the sign has been removed? This hint was dropped in a recent talk with a delegation from those towns.

Anyway, the matter is far from being satisfactorily settled. We can't afford to slight three towns to keep the goodwill of one. Of course there was no offense meant to the three towns; we doubt if the thought ever entered the minds of local chamber officers. The question is a worth-while one for consideration of the chamber members; it should be given a thorough airing and perhaps some better solution may be found. As a matter of fact, it is likely that Pittsville people who took offense at the sign when it appeared, have the subject still rankling in their bosoms. It is something they will probably not forget speedily, even with the sign taken away. Auburndale, Arpin and Vesper should be considered in the discussion, undoubtedly. Their representatives will be only too pleased to be present at a meeting here on the subject and we believe that such a meeting should be held soon. Moreover, the whole subject has been more or less tangled by statements and counter-statements; affirmations and retractions, and it is evident that a full explanation of proceedings thus far is needed.

ODD FELLOWS—The following officers were installed at a meeting of the Odd Fellows on Tuesday evening, by John Stumpf, Dist. Grand Master:

F. W. Burt, N. G.; H. Pigg, V. G.; H. E. Benedict, Sec.; J. W. Hodges, Treas.; Geo. Howes, W.; C. L. Powers, C.; W. J. Smith, O. G.; W. C. Gregg, I. G.; Jay Allen, R. S. N. G.; Phillip Bean, L. S. N. G.; Frank Frazier, R. S. S.; J. Minman, L. S. S.; J. Cohtes, R. S. V. G.; Al. Ely, L. S. V. G.

DANCING ACADEMY—Prof. J. J. Ritter will in a short time open a course of Dancing Lessons in this city, assisted by Prof. Rogers' orchestra, in which a rare chance will be offered to those wishing to learn to dance.

THE FOURTH— The citizens of Grand Rapids and Centralia united in a celebration in the latter place on Saturday last. The procession was formed here on Front Street, and was composed by the Centralia band, a band of martial music, the firemen in uniform, with their steamer and hose carts in holiday attire, the Good Templars of Centralia, and citizens generally. After parading through some of the principal streets the concourse proceeded to the grounds in rear of Mr. Dutruit's residence, where a commodious and well-shaded stand for the officers of the day, speakers, glee club and bands, had been erected.

LOCAL BREVITIES—New awnings are making an appearance. Lem Kromer and Charley Herschleb each put up one yesterday.

Larry Ward of Scranton informs us that his mill will shut down next week for the want of logs to saw.

A new barber shop was opened on Wednesday last, by Mr. and Mrs. Black in Gleason's restaurant. Now that a lady is operating here with the brush and razor, those who had ceased to shave will probably have their hirsute ornaments removed.

Mr. H. A. Clark, supervisor from Rudolph, was a welcome caller on Wednesday. He informs us that the prospect for good crops in his town is very flattering.

Mr. A. S. Trow, Eureka, one of the owners of our Centralia flouring mill, pulled the latch string of the Tribune office on Thursday.

A complete set of silverware with no spoons or anything missing has never been on a picnic.

BOOM DAVIS FOR VICE-PRESIDENCY

KANSAS MAN'S ASPIRATIONS ARE REALLY FOR SECOND PLACE IS BELIEF; VROOMAN ALSO A CONTENDER

BY HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

New York—"Kansas," said William Allen White, in the editorial which first introduced him to fame, "can raise something else besides hell!"

And in proof of the Kansas journalist's statement the Sunflower State is holding up for the consideration of the nation, at the Democratic convention here, the figure of Jonathan M. Davis, Kansas-bred and Kansas-born, as the man who can pull the Democratic party across the election line Nov. 4, a winner.

All the direct efforts in Davis' behalf have been aimed, ostensibly, at making him the compromise candidate for president. That's the way the game is played. No one really expects Davis to be nominated, of course. Not even the most optimistic booster from his own home state.

But by shooting at the presidency, by aiming high, it is hoped the Davis trajectory may carry him to second place on the ticket and bring him the nomination for vice president.

The claim that is made first and foremost for Davis is that he is a real dirt farmer. Although as governor of the sovereign state of Kansas he dons linen collar and polished shoes in his office, his real preference is for the overalls and jumper of the farmer. And instead of a golf club, he prefers to grub a pitchfork or a hoe handle.

Davis was born in Kansas 53 years ago and has lived all his life on a farm. His avocation, however, has been helping to shape public affairs. He served eight years as a member of the Kansas House of Representatives and four as state senator before his election, two years ago, as governor.

Between raising corn and hogs Davis has been a diligent student of history and economics. He has a natural aptitude for absorbing information and for applying it practically. As a result, his fellow Kansans describe him as "an intellectual giant, who can talk with a professor or a farm hand with equal grace and who knows equally well the business end of a plow or of a governmental policy."

"He is no spavined political warhorse," they urge. "Neither is he an economic maniac. He's a sane, practical, horse-sense farmer and citizen who knows the problems and the needs of the average American. He represents the common people and he comes from the heart of the country."

Next to Davis, as a candidate aimed at the presidency but counted on to score in the vice presidential circle, is Carl Vrooman, of Bloomington, Ill.

Vrooman, 51 years old, looks more nearly 41. He's a slender, erect, brown-mustached man with a bright eye and an engaging smile.

Vrooman also is urged as a "dirt farmer" candidate. He operates some 4300 acres of farm lands in Illinois and Iowa.

Unlike Davis, however, Vrooman doesn't often get between the plow handles or heave the pitchfork. Still, it's from his farms he makes his living and, as he says, when the farmers lose money he loses money.

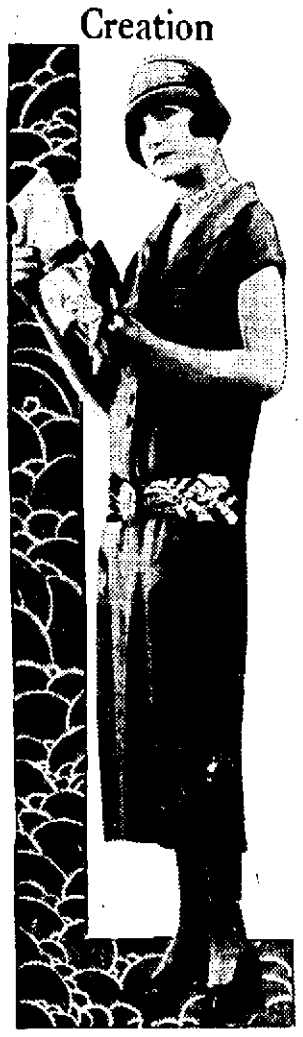
Shoe men are happy. They say the fall trade is booming already. We will need shoes for hunting coal.

Turban

The turban and the bag here photographed are of figured silk in brilliant shades of red, green and black, and they make a stunning outfit when coupled with the white crepe de chine frock accordeon pleated in the fine pleats so popular this season. This is in line with the policy fashion has lately decreed that the accessories are much more important than the frock.

Creation



This model is wearing one of the latest creations of Jean Patou that gives a very good idea of what skirt lengths and lines for fall will be. The waist is lengthened and the skirt shortened until the left practically cuts it half and half. There is nothing to relieve the severity of cut but the wide leather belt of white leather with markings in Chinese red. The dress and hat are of the same material, black kasha.

Canaries Again Are Singing in Shops of Bremerhaven

Bremerhaven.— The canary bird trade of Bremerhaven is just getting on its feet again after having been cleaned out last summer by the officers and sailors of the U.S.S. Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh had a pay day while here, which was during the period of Germany's financial inflation when a dollar was worth millions and billions of marks, and a canary bird could be bought for 80 cents or less. The run on the canary bird stores started the second day the cruiser was in port. By the time the warship pulled out everybody aboard, from Real Admiral Philip Andrews to stoker, had his own little bird and the Bremerhaven canary dealers had nothing but empty cages.

Orders for new supplies were placed in several bird centers in the Herz mountain districts, but the town had been so completely cleaned of all songsters that it required all winter for the dealers to get their business back to normal.

Hal Chase Playing Ball With Arizona Mining Team

New York—The whereabouts of Hal Chase, ranked by many experts as the greatest of all first basemen, has finally been discovered. An ardent Polo grounder returned recently from Arizona and reported that Hal is now playing with a miners' team at Jerome, Ariz., and can still field, bat and run as he did when he was with the Yankees and later with the Giants.

Ever since Chase was driven out of baseball his friends in New York have wondered where he was and not until this week did they find out.

RUTH'S HOME RUN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN YANKEE VICTORY

TWENTY-SECOND HOME RUN OF YEAR COMES IN EIGHTH INNING AND SPURS MATES ON TO WIN OVER SENATORS

Washington, D. C.—New York concluded its five game series with Washington Sunday with a 7 to 0 victory, its fourth of the lot. The Yankees scored four runs in the ninth, while in the eighth Ruth hit the ball into the left field bleachers for his twenty-second home run of the season. Catcher Ruel, of Washinton, was knocked senseless when Hendrick collided with him at the plate in the ninth and had to be replaced by Tate.

Detroit—The Tigers were held to three hits Sunday, losing 5 to 1 to the Browns.

The Browns got six hits with two bases on balls off Stoner in the seventh for three runs. Homers by Sisler and Stoner featured the game.

Chicago—Cleveland lost another battle of heavy hits to Chicago Sunday, the final score being 9 to 6. Six two base hits and a triple were recorded. Coveleskie, who opened for Cleveland, lasted but a few minutes when the White Sox got four hits and scored four runs off his delivery in the first inning.

Minneapolis—St. Paul made a clean sweep of the series with Minneapolis, taking Sunday's game, 5 to 2. Lynch pitched airtight ball until the sixth, permitting the visitors only two hits. But in that inning, with two out Rondeau muffed Dressen's liner to left, the catch of which would have retired the side. Morse scored on the error and Haas and Wade followed with successive home runs.

Louisville — Indianapolis defeated Louisville both games of a double header here Sunday, 10 to 1 and 4 to 2. Koob and Estell were hit hard in the first game. The second was a pitcher's duel between Burwell, and Deberry. The former had a slight edge all the way through. Bad fielding proved costly to the home team.

Toledo—Hard and timely hitting gave Columbus the final game of the series with Toledo Sunday 8 to 2. The Senators drove Baldwin out of the box in the first inning, scoring three runs and counted three more in the fifth off McCulpair in the ninth. Ambrose pitched good ball. Toledo was unable to solve his delivery.

New York—The New York Giants ended their home stay Sunday, dividing a double header with Philadelphia winning the first game, 5 to 1, and losing the second, 0 to 2. In the second contest Jimmy Ring shut out the Giants, allowing only five hits. It was the first time the Giants went scoreless this season.

Cy Williams' ninth home run of the season and Schultz' four base drive were the only runs in the second game.

Cincinnati—Jakie May, was wild and ineffective Sunday and the Reds fielded poorly behind him, while Cooper pitched cleverly and the Pirates beat the Reds 9 to 2. The fielding of Traynor was a sensational feature. All of his eight assists were on difficult chances.

Brooklyn—Brookyn divided a double-header here Sunday, the visitors taking the first, 4 to 1, and Reuther pitching a 5 to 0 shutout in the second. The Dodgers won the second game by bunching hits off Cooney and Stryker in the fifth inning.

St. Louis—Blades' three base hit, scoring three runs in the first, followed by Freigau's single, scoring Blades, drove Jacobs from the box and tied up the game for the Cardinals in the fourth game of the series with Chicago here Sunday. The score was 13 to 4. The Cubs' rally in the second, bringing in three runs and one in the third, retired Haines. Smith stole three bases and the Cardinals worked three double plays, scoring freely in the final inning.

Milwaukee—After losing the first game 8-5, Harry Clark's Brewers came back in the second tilt and managed to eke out a 7-7 tie against the Kaws.

Finns Take Lead in First Day Of Olympics; Two Records Go

RITOLA CAPTURES 10,000 METERS IN RECORD BREAKING STYLE; ABRAHAMS BREAKS 100 METERS DASH MARK

Olympic Stadium, France, July 7—The United States got together its athletic forces here this afternoon to start a drive to overhaul Finland, which held a commanding lead for the Olympic track and field championship as the second day of the final competition began.

Ideal weather conditions promised to favor the Americans who were strongly fortified in three of the four finals to be decided this afternoon.

Colombes Stadium, France—Smashing two world's records, the Olympic athletes got under way Sunday in track and field events.

The day was one of triumph for Finland, which scored both of the first places which were decided, capturing the 10,000 meters run and the javelin throw and running up a total of 30 points.

U. S. is Third

The leaders of the day in points were: Finland 30; Sweden 11; United States 6; England 3.

Willie Ritola, the Finnish runner, flashed through to a world's record in the 10,000 meter event, his time being 30 minutes 23 1-5 seconds.

2 Yanks Place

Before cleaning up the 10,000 meters the Finns gained a first in the javelin throw, which Myrra of Finland won with a throw of 62.96 meters. Lindstrom of Sweden was second, Oberst of the United States third, Edquist of Finland fourth, Neufeld of the United States fifth and Bloomquist of Sweden sixth.

Outside of the 10,000 meters and teh javelin throw, however, the Americans made a formidable showing. They came in for a serious bit of bad luck when Coulter, Iowa university hurdler, slipped and fell in the mud, failing to qualify in the 400 hurdles. He had been counted on as a sure point winner.

Another American reversal came when Juday failed to qualify in the high jump. However, three other jumpers qualified, Tom Poor, Brown and Osborne.

The American sprinters looked fine. Four of them qualified for the finals. Abrahams, the English star, looked best of the foreign sprinters, and his record-breaking act caused much comment in the Yankee camp.

Jackson V. Scholz ran in finest form, while Charley Paddock looked as if he were trying to get in some heavy work. Four Americans also qualified in the half mile finals, and the Yankees won two places in the javelin throw. This was most encouraging, as the United States only got one place at Antwerp.

The The American half milers looked as if they might win their event, which they lost at Antwerp.

Forty-one nations with 900 entries, went out in the day's track and field events.

U. S. Poloists Defeated By Argentines

(By Associated Press)

St. Cloud, France—Argentine Sunday emerged victorious from a terrific duel with the United States for supremacy in the world's polo, winning from the North American team by the narrow score of 6 to 5.

In a heart breaking finish, with the score tied 5 and 5 one minute from the final bell, Jack Nelson, the Argentine star, brought the spectators to their feet, cheering and applauding wildly by scoring the goal which meant victory for South America.

If the United States had won Sunday she would have clinched the Olympic championship, having won all four of her previous matches. The Argentines, however, still have to defeat both France and Great Britain before attaining the championship. That the South American team will win is regarded as almost certain, the Yankee quartet being the only serious contenders.

St. Lawrence Club Defeats Pointers On Local Grounds

Outplaying their opponents in every department the St. Lawrence club team of this city were returned winners over the Guarantee Hardware Company team of Stevens Point, Sunday aftrnoon, at the Ahdawagam grounds by a 12-6 score. By virtue of the victory, W. Jakusz, star south paw chucker of the local club scored another win over his brother, B. Jakusz, who appeared on the mound for the Point nine.

In the duel the brothers were about evenly divided on the matter of strikeouts, the local pegger getting 10 and his brother 9, but in the matter of hits W. Jakusz, for the St. Lawrence club, allowed 10, while his mates secured 15 off B. Jakusz. Dolan, Damon and Mroczek each secured 3 blows. The game was witnessed by a good sized crowd.

BADGERS EASILY COP FOUNDRY TILT

YOUNGSTERS TRIM VETERANS IN EASY FASHION. MAUL OFFERINGS OF FOSTER ALL OVER THE LOT

Age vs. youth in a baseball game played at Ahdawagam park, Saturday afternoon, between the Badgers, playground champs, and Mayor Otto Roenius' foundry nine resulted in a walk-away for the kids who won about as they pleased by a 19-3 score. Only a bad eighth inning on the part of the Badgers, who slipped a few times behind Alpine's momentarily weak performance, enabled the Foundry nine to score, their three runs coming in this inning.

Alpine is Star

Opposed to Alpine was Foster who was pounded unmercifully by the youngsters who knocked out 18 safe bingles during the slaughter. Christophki, Nash, Alpine and Ristow each drove out 3 hits for the Badgers. Besides starring at bat Alpine twirled another of his unbeatable games holding his opponents to five hits and striking out 13.

After being hit rather hard in the eighth he came back string in the ninth retiring the side on strikes.

Any teams wishing to play in either twilight or afternoon games must have their lineups in to the playground director, "Red" Reynolds before Wednesday of this week. From Wednesday on all games will be played strictly according to schedule.

New York—Tom Gibbons, conqueror of Georges Carpentier, sailed for Europe Saturday on the Leviathan to keep his engagement on July 19 with Joe Bloomfield, England's heavyweight. With him went Andre Anderson, who will hook up in the semi-final of the day's battles with Joe Beckett, once England's idol. Manager Eddie Kane went along also.

WHENEVER or wherever you buy it, you'll always find Ivaline Motor Oil the same in quality. It comes from the one reliable source of quality lubricating oils—Eastern paraffine base crude. Limiting our market as we do, we are not compelled to go anywhere and everywhere for oil materials and deliver an "inflated" product whose tests vary like April weather.

IVALINE IKE SAYS: "Don't forget that oil wears out. Drain your crankcase every 500 miles."

IVALINE MOTOR OIL
"The Sooner the Better"

is an ideal lubricant. It is tough and elastic—free from grit, grease and acid—and leaves but the merest trace of free carbon. It flows readily, spreads out evenly, resists the highest engine temperature, and is found doing its duty when ordinary "inflated" oils would have long before ceased to function.

Winona Oil Company
Winona products are all guaranteed and we insist on the highest standards of service.

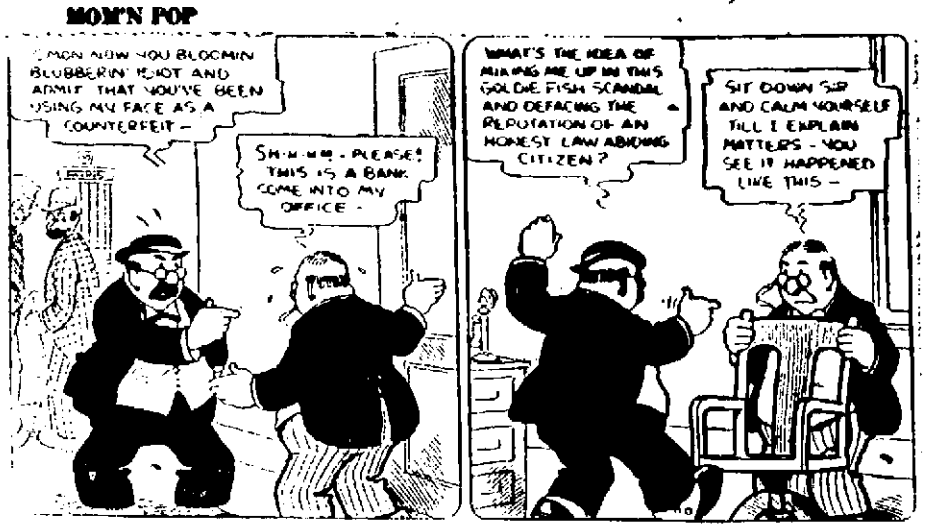
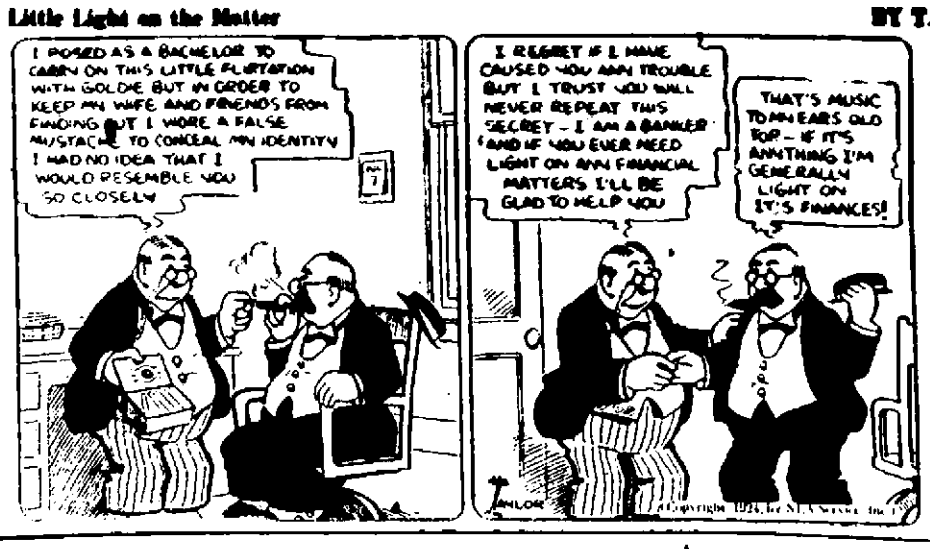
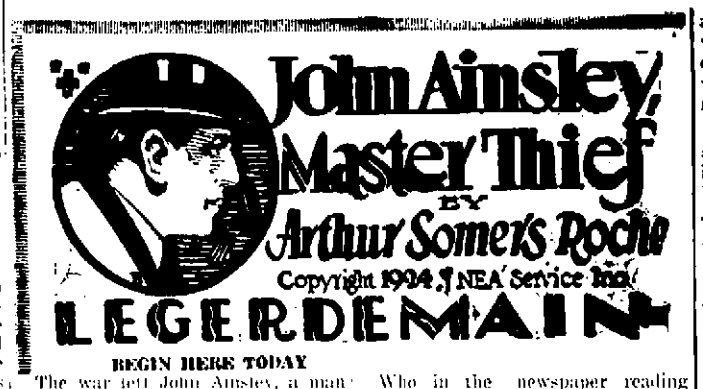
MOM'N POP



A Little Light on the Matter BY TAYLOR





BEGIN HERE TODAY

The war left John Ainsley, a man of education and breeding, unfit for work. He becomes a master crook. "To prey upon thieves; that shall be my career," he decides. "For if a thief is robbed, where may he look for redress?"

Ainsley visits the Jardin des Nymphes in Paris with two American acquaintances. A tall white-haired man is pointed out to him as the White Eagle. The White Eagle, it appears, is a brilliant crook who never has fallen into the clutches of the law. The White Eagle is in the company of a gross, vulgar-seeming man and woman. Ainsley suspects that the White Eagle is manipulating a swindle. He finds out the names of the man and woman—then leaves his friends and returns to his apartment.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

I found out in a few minutes, when their car stopped before the Meurice. I dismissed my taxi and entered into conversation with the hotel porter. From him, without difficulty, and without arousing suspicion, I learned the name of the couple who had just entered the hotel. Then I turned and walked to my apartment in the Rue Daunou.

I find that one thinks better in bed than any other place. Undressed, then, with cigaret stand beside me, I pondered the strange relationship which I had seen evidenced tonight.

What was the basis of the acquaintance between the White Eagle, a notorious though unpunished criminal, and Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Higgins, of Cincinnati, Ohio?

I wondered that I had not recognized the Higginses at first glance. Still, the photographs of them which had appeared in the American and European press, had evidently been retouched to a degree. And if I had not instantly recognized the faces, I paid proper tribute to the Higgins glory by immediately identifying their names.

Who in the newspaper reading world had not heard of Josiah Higgins, who had been a multimillionaire before the war, and who was now popularly reputed to be worth at least a billion? Statisticians had estimated how many times his fortune, if reduced to dollar bills, would girdle the globe, how many times it would rebuild the Pyramids if reduced to silver coins. And other statisticians had solemnly affirmed that it cost thirty thousand dollars to dress Mrs. Higgins for breakfast, and at least a million and a quarter properly to clothe and ornament her for dinner.

Their extravagances had become a matter of international awe. Also, the queer parsimony that accompanied their extravangance was known to all the world. Higgins proudly boasted that he never gave a dollar to charity, and that he never lent money. They tipped outrageously, but Higgins haggled with his workmen, and was probably the most cordially hated employer in America.

They had assailed the gates of fashion in New York, and their rebuffs had become historic. They had failed to impress Mayfair and the Faubourgs as well as Fifth Avenue, but they did not lack for satellites. They were in a fair way toward creating a fashionable society of their own, if fashion be judged, as it frequently is, by the amount of newspaper space accorded it.

And this couple talked confidentially with such a person as the White Eagle! The thought of blackmail entered my mind, but I dismissed it at once. If the White Eagle had been threatening the millionaire, the manner of each of them would have partaken of strain. No, they had been talking business.

What business? What possible business could exist between the White Eagle and Josiah Higgins? If Higgins had had a son or daughter who could have become entangled in some underworld affair, I could understand that the White Eagle had been called upon for aid. But the couple was childless.

If Higgins were as foolish as he was unadmirable, I could have guessed at a solution of the problem that puzzled me. I could have imagined that the White Eagle was surreptitiously disposing of stolen goods to the millionaire. But Higgins was too sane to indulge in that sort of shady barter, if he were not too honest.

I tossed upon the bed; I fumed and fretted and smoked a score of cigarets. Somewhere in this relation between the criminal and the millionaire lay an opportunity for me, if only I had eyes wherewith to see it.

For whatever the relation between Higgins and the White Eagle, it must be something underhanded, even though I could not guess why the millionaire should descend to such a matter. The White Eagle was a crook; a crook does only crooked business, whether his partner be honest or otherwise. That is axiomatic. But where in the axiom lay a profit for me?

I awoke with a headache; I had slept little, and that little had been interrupted by dreams in which the White Eagle took a fortune from Josiah Higgins, while I looked on, powerless to abstract the fortune from the so-called supercrook.

I tried to eat breakfast; but the combination of too much wine and too little sleep had killed my appetite. I was nervous restless, and so I went for a walk. I crossed to the Left Bank, wandering aimlessly, my mind intent on the puzzle, solution of which I felt meant profit to me, and finally found myself in the neighborhood of the Luxembourg. The walk had cleared my head, and appetite had come to me. I walked on to Foyot's and ordered breakfast. Food put me in a more philosophical frame of mind. After all, I might be deluding myself; Higgins might have made the acquaintance of a notorious crook simply for the sake of the thrill that some people gain from such an acquaintance. At any rate, it did not behoove me to wear out my nerves in imagining problems that, having no existence, could have no solution.

And yet I was ashamed of these reflections; for after all, they were simply confessions of my own inability to meet a situation and make it yield a profit.

Despite my resolutions, then, to think thin kno more of Higgins and to think no more of Higgins and the White Eagle, they were both in my mind as, turning a corner into the Rue des Saints Peres, I collided with a group of people standing before a doorway. I muttered an apology, stepped back, and noted that the person of the group with whom I had come into most violent contact—he had fallen to the ground—was blind in one eye.

I bent over swiftly, and helped him to his feet. My perfunctory apology become profuse and sincere. Seeing that he was poorly dressed, I ventured to offer him a coin. He seized it greedily, and I would have passed on, only that I noticed that the rest of the group were all blind in one eye.

Other groups stood across the street, in the street, and farther down the narrow sidewalk on which I stood. And I noticed that every single one of them suffered the same affliction; they were all blind in one eye.

I suppose that my amazed horror was reflected in my face. For the man to whom I had presented the gratuity laughed at me.

"Monsier is amazed, yes? To see so many of us is strange?"

"Is there a hospital here?" I asked, pointing at the building before which we stood.

He shook his head. "No, monsier, it is the home of a patron of all afflicted such as we. Monsier has not read this morning's Cri de Paris?"

I shook my head, and he thrust into my hand a copy of the paper, folded back to expose an advertisement. I read it lamely in my faltering French. Translated, it ran:

"A gentleman whose son, having lost an eye for France, bore his wound proudly, despite his affliction, until his death by accident recently, wishes to honor the memory of that noble son by kindnesses to those similarly afflicted. The gentleman will devote part of his large fortune to the founding and maintenance of a club of one-eyed men. It will not be limited only to those who lost their sight in the war against the cursed Boche. All men who are without the sight of one eye are eligible to the privileges of the Club. Those interested are requested to apply to Number—, Rue des Saints Peres, between the hours of nine and twelve on Wednesday."

I read this amazing advertisement, so typically French in sentiment, and my eyes filled with tears. It was a charity a trifle too bizarre for American taste, but its kindness would appeal to the generosity of any country. I placed another coin in my informant's palm, and hurried away from the grotesque scene.

But at the first corner I stopped, turned, and stared after a man who had passed me. It was the White Eagle; and all my interest in him, which had evaporated while I read the strange advertisement, condensed and flowed back into my brain.

And then interest became amazement, for he entered the house before which the groups of blind men stood. Immediately upon his entrance a servant came to the door and beckoned to the unfortunates. Five minutes later they were all within the house.

I waited outside, at a convenient corner. Somehow or other I could not believe that this grotesque advertisement contained all that was of interest. Of course, crooks are notoriously impulsive, given to streaks of extravagant generosity. Nevertheless, I waited.

One by one, the blind men began to emerge from the house. All of them seemed happy, as though incredible good fortune had come to them. Finally the man whom I had tipped appeared. I accosted him, and he beamed upon me.

"Ah, it is my generous American!"

"Well, did you join the Club?" I asked.

THE OLD HOME TOWN BY STANLEY

And the Rosebush Quaked

By WICKES WAMBOLDT

One fall after the leaves had dropped and the grass had grown brown, a man planted a little rosebush on his lawn. The rosebush was pleased with its surroundings, and it spoke of its feelings to an abelia bush which stood near. "Yes," said the abelia bush, seriously, "that is so, but I am thinking of the cow. They let the cow run on this lawn. You are so little. When your leaves come out in the summer, she will eat you up as sure as the world."

That ominous suggestion gave the rosebush such a fright that its winter slumber was turned into an awful nightmare. Not for one moment could it rest. Day and night it harbored the fear of having its tender shoots nipped off by the cow when spring came. It tried to bolster its courage by recalling that a cow has no upper teeth and perhaps after all could not bite very hard. But the whole winter through it quaked in its roots.

Spring came and buds began to swell. The rosebush tried to hold itself back. It did not want to put out anything to tempt the cow. But nature was too strong, its tender shoots began to appear.

The master of the place came out and looked at the little rosebush. He called his gardener and said, "I have been waiting to see if this bush was going to do anything. It evidently is. Drive down some stakes and put some wire around it, so the cow cannot get at it.

It was done and the little rosebush was safe. It had frightened itself all winter for nothing.

For sixty years one woman entertained the constant dread of losing her mother. When anyone would try to comfort her by saying, "Look how long you have lived already, and your mother is still with you," she would say, "Yes, but that only means that I am nearer now to losing her than ever."

Yet when the daughter was sixty-five, it was the mother who closed the daughter's eyes in final slumber. She had worried for sixty years over a thing that never happened.

"How shall I get through next year?" a business man will ask himself despondently. But he gets through. "What would happen to me if John died?" fears the wife with four children. And yet John has been known to die and the wife with four children has been known to enter a state of happiness that she had never dreamed of with John.

We quake for nothing, as did the lion when the mountain shook and only a mouse ran out.

Hunt's Washington Letter

By HARRY B. HUNT
NEA Service Writer

New York—Political spellbinders for the campaign of 1924 will have to develop a new style of oratory.

The small-time, second-rate speechmakers that heretofore have been used to fill in at meetings in the town hall and the village crossroads will no longer play an important part in shaping public thought on the campaign issues.

The big figures in state and national politics, who can speak convincingly and authoritatively, will have vastly increased audiences and influence.

All this will be due to radio, which will be utilized by all parties to transmit their campaign arguments, as presented by their biggest spokesmen, to the most remote parts of the country.

—o—

But the old style of spread-eagle oratory, delivered in impassioned tones and with much frantic gesticulation, is not good radio oratory. Neither is the long-winded, thinly-spun speech lasting for an hour or more.

To hold a radio audience, according to C. B. Popenoe, program director of Station WJZ, political orators will have to condense. The speaker who can compress his message into 15 or 20 minutes, presenting it clearly, logically and convincingly, will develop a following that will "tune in" on him whenever he is breadcasting.

The speaker, however, who by indulging in flowery rhetoric and pretty perorations, prolongs his speech to longer than half an hour, will be deserted by his audience.

It's one thing to get up and walk out of a hall when you are tired or bored by a speaker, and quite another to get off the air if he fails to interest you. The first attracts unpleasant attention, is an obvious discourtesy to the speaker, and an annoyance to others in the audience. The latter is accomplished by the simple twisting of a dial, quickly, easily, effectively.

Because radio makes it possible to widen the audience of any given speaker to include the whole country, large radio audiences, Popenoe believes, will be sought after even more eagerly than large public gatherings.

Radio popularization of a few effective speakers, together with the occasional nation-wide broadcasting of addresses by the presidential candidates themselves, rather than the indiscriminate haranguing of hit-and-miss spellbinders who confuse instead of clarify the issues, is proposed as the most promising program for "selling" the respective candidacies "by air."

With some 10,000,000 radio sets now in American homes, every voter who cares to hear the causes of the candidates as presented by themselves or their party's leading spokesmen, can do so. If he hasn't a set in his own home, some of his neighbors will have.

—o—

Delegates from inland towns and the arid west spent a lot of time during the Democratic convention looking over the "queer fish" to be found in New York.

New York has a lot of "queer fish" outside those housed down at the aquarium, but it was the species inhabiting the big tanks in the fish house down by the Battery that intrigued the interest of visitors most. The human sharks and whales of Gotham ran a poor second.

Attendants at the aquarium estimated that the daily number of visitors was doubled by the convention crowds. Between 2000 and 3000 convention guests daily, in addition to the normal 2000, crowded in to watch the fish.

The horsefish piqued the curiosity of inland delegates most, with blowfish running a strong second. Possibly because they both suggested something political. The blowfish looks not unlike a windy candidate. And one visitor inquired where he could find the dark horsefish!

MEEHAN NOTES

Miss Edith Fox of Chicago, who has been enjoying her vacation here at the old home, returned to her home Saturday. She is employed by the Western Electric company.

Many from Meehan attended the celebration at Wisconsin Rapids the Fourth of July.

Mr. and Mrs. William Clussman entertained 32 friends and relatives the Fourth of July at a picnic dinner.

Art Clendenning has purchased a son Wednesday. They were accompanied home by their mother and sister, Mable, who spent the Fourth here and returned home Sunday.

The strawberry crops are good around Meehan this year.

Art Clendening has purchased a Nash and John Wolosek a Studebaker.

Miss Elizabeth Fox visited relatives at Plainfield last week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Roe and daughters, Mable and Jennie of Saratoga visited relatives here over Sunday.

County Agent Nobles will give an address at the Meehan Community club meeting on July 11.

Pleasant Valley Locals

The June meeting of the Pleasant Valley Community club was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Hetze attended the funeral of Mrs. August Heuer of Veedum Thursday.

Florence and Evelyn Robertson were Wisconsin Rapids visitors Thursday.

Mrs. William Meyers was a Monday afternoon caller at the Bencke home.

Mrs. C. H. Johnson and daughter Jessie of Meadow Valley and Mrs. Ed Howery of Finley were Fourth of July afternoon callers at the Bert Johnson home.

Mrs. John Hunke and son of Milwaukee, who have been visiting the last two weeks with her mother, Mrs. C. Karlofski, left Wednesday noon for her home.

Bert Johnson of Pittsville started Friday, June 27, giving music lessons to a class of four in the Valley. Irene and Orian Hayes, Florence Robertson and Willard Johnson are taking lessons.

German War Orphan Girls to Study Domestic Science

Lankwitz, Germany—A special school has been built here to train girls between 14 and 16 years of age in domestic science and practical nursing. The school is especially for girls whose fathers were killed in the war and whose mothers also are dead or, if living, in such straitened circumstances that they cannot give their daughters the necessary attention and education.

A large hospital adjacent to the school will cooperate and here during the mornings the practical experience in housework, cooking and baking, washing, ironing, sewing, gardening, orcharding, truck farming and cattle raising will be gained. In the afternoons the girls will be instructed in civics, physiology, hygienics and other subjects.

Isolation of Lepers Is India's Greatest Problem

Manila—Isolation of the leper is one of the serious problems of India, according to Dr. A. R. J. Douglas of Rangoon, Burma, who is in the Philippines. Culion where 5,500 lepers are conditions of lepers in the islands and the methods of treatment employed at Culion where 5,000 lepers are confined.

"We have 100,000 lepers registered in India and estimate that there are as many more unregistered," said Dr. Douglas. "There are 10,000 known lepers in Burma alone, with 10,000 more unregistered.

"Isolation of the leper is one of the serious problems of India. The country is in the throes of several upheavals at present and too much pressure by the British might bring condemnation from the natives. Complete isolation, as in the Philippines, would be almost impossible in India."

Dr. Douglas says tropical disease experts of Indian dispute the belief of some medical men that the chaulmoogra oil treatment for lepers is absolute, and that leprosy will be cleared from the earth within the next 50 years.

Made W. J. B. a Great-Grand-Dad

Announcement that he was a great-grand-father came to William Jennings Bryan in the midst of convention turmoil. Here are Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Meeker, the happy parents. Mrs. Meeker is Bryan's grand-daughter.

Army Riflemen Qualify 100 Per Cent Marksmen

San Francisco.—The Thirtieth Infantry, stationed here, is establishing the reputation of being the best regiment of marksmen in the army, it is said at Western Division headquarters.

Recently 46 men of the regiment went to the rifle range at Fort Barry with automatic rifles. The qualification of "expert riflemen," the highest grade awarded for marksmanship, was given to 44 and the other two won the rank of "sharpshooter," the next highest grade. The automatic rifle, a light, air-cooled machine gun, is carried and fired like an ordinary rifle and requires expert handling.

Out of 90 automatic gunners of the regiment, 85 have qualified as expert riflemen this year and the other five rank as sharpshooters.

Founding of Alaskan Town Due to Taking Wrong Route

Seattle, Wash.—The founding of Fairbanks, Alaska, in 1902, was due to a mistake in taking a water route by Captain John Barnette, according to relatives here.

Captain Barnette sailed up the Yukon river to investigate the Tanana river. Furnished with some of the inaccurate maps of the period, he mistook the Chena Slough for the Tanana river and sailed to the present site of Fairbanks before discovering his error. He was forced to discharge the greater part of his cargo of trade goods to lighten the boat in maneuvering it back to the main stream. When he discovered the possibilities of the place, he built a log store.

A Course in Liberal Arts

is coming more and more to be recognized as a desirable broadening, preliminary to the study of the professions. Many professional men of today are regretting that they took only the minimum of liberal arts education in their time.

Marquette University comprises nine colleges offering courses in liberal arts, education, engineering (cooperative system), medicine, pre-medicine, dentistry, dental hygiene, nursing, business administration, law, pre-law, journalism, music and dramatic art.

Army Worms Are Making Advances Into Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., July 7.— Army worms are making advances into many parts of the state and are an increasing menace, according to reports received by H. F. Wilson, of the economic entomoogy department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.

"I have received scores of inquiries as to how to check the damage done by insects and worms; among these are letters from farmers in Grant, Green, and Rock counties asking how to stop the ravages of the army worm," Wilson said.

Where the worms have already appeared in the fields, Wilson urges the use of poison bait as a control measure. About eight or ten pounds wet weight of poisoned bran should be applied to the acre. The sowing should be made late in the afternoon or towards evening, so that the bran will be fresh for the worms when they begin to feed at night, he declares.

World's Iron Ore Resources Menaced by Rust, Corrosion

Chicago—Battling rust and corrosion costs approximately two and a half billion dollars a year, according to W. J. Overbeck, superintendent of the DuPont Company of Chicago.

"This sum spent annually to counteract the ravages of corrosion and rust will give a fair idea of the total bill the world is paying for the slow decay of metals used in industrial work, which are not protected against them," he declared. "It is a vital matter because the yearly waste is making the iron ore resources of the world exhaustible within a measurable distance of time."

Election Irregularities Cost Candidates Fortunes

Oxford, England.—Frank Gray, who lost his seat as member of Parliament for Oxford City thru election irregularities of his agent, said he had been called upon to find $40,000 to pay his costs at the trial, and admitted that he had not the money.

"My party and my friends are standing by me," Mr. Gray said, "and are finding the money. My wife and I," he added, "are not too proud to appreciate this help, but the money must be found at the earliest possible moment, and to do this we have been compelled to dismiss all our servants with the exception of one old retainer, and have had to wash up and do domestic work between us."

Peons Driven Over Border by Mexican Land Allotments

Mexico City—Paradoxical as it may seem, the first effect of the national agrarian program, intended to provide a bit of land for each of Mexico's long downtrodden peons, is to swell the tide of emigrants to the United States, according to Cesar Cordoba, general secretary of the National Agrarian Commission.

This emigration, says Mr. Cordoba, results from the fact that wealthy land-owners, when they learn that their peons have petitioned the national government for land, conspire with venal local authorities to institute a veritable reign of terror against the petitioners. Without money or work the peons are unable to remain until the red tape envolving a division of lands is unwound, and are forced to migrate.

Mr. Cordoba maintains, however, that data in the files of the commission shows that the real cause of Mexican emigration is lack of land and that there is virtually no emigration from sections where the good effects of the agragrian laws have been felt.

How He Has Changed

Frederick Wilhelm Hohenzollern, once referred to as the German crown prince, has become a great automobile and motorcycle race fan. This latest picture of the one-time young war lord—the first to be secured in some time—shows him at the motor races in Germany with some of his cronies. The ex-prince is the young man on the left.

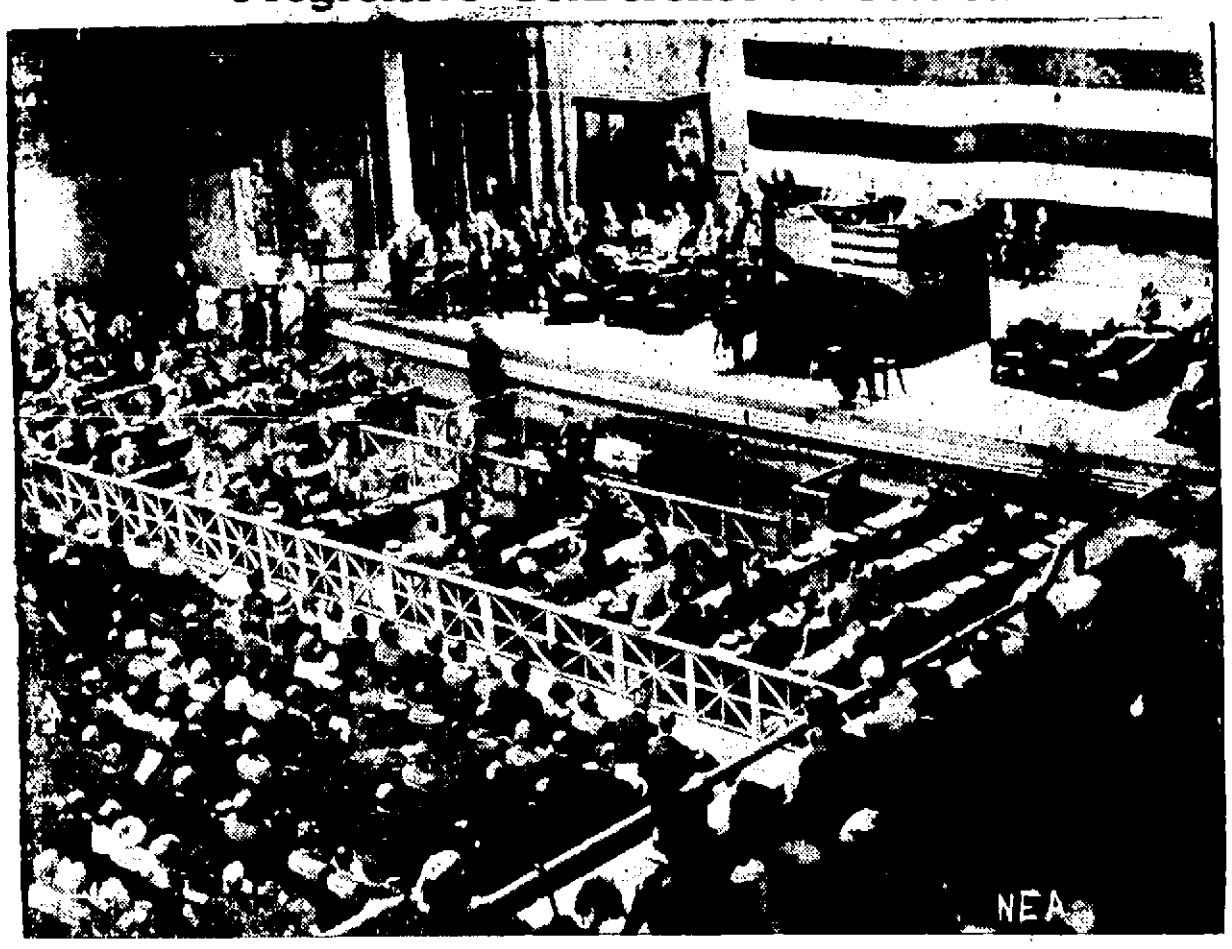
Progressive Conference in Session



This photograph was taken just after Chairman William H. Johnston had called the Conference for Progressive Political Action to order in the Cleveland Auditorium, or Public Hall, as Clevelanders prefer to call it.

The gathering place is the same in which the Republican convention was held nearly a month ago.

Despite the hall's enormous size the main floor was pretty well filled with delegates, spectators and newspaper representatives, and there was even a sprinkling in the galleries.

The picture was taken looking directly down upon the heart of the conference, showing the delegates massed in front of the rostrum from which they are separated, however, by the press section. In the very foreground is a corner of one of the galleries, from which the camera was directed.

Photographer "Bob" Dorman elected to concentrate on the very center of the conference's activities in preference to including the entire hall, thus achieving a pleasing variation from the orthodox style of convention photograph, which in this case would practically have duplicated the earlier Republican gathering.

Meet to Organize Rudolph Calf Club Thursday Night

OFFICERS WILL BE ELECTED AND PLANS FORMULATED BY BOYS AND GIRLS OF THE COMMUNITY

Calf owners among the boys and girls of the Rudolph community will meet Thursday evening, July 10, at the home of C. H. Imig to perfect an organization for the year 1924 and to consider plans for community meetings and for the showing of stock at the Stevens Point and Marshfield fairs. About 20 boys and girls have enrolled for membership in the Rudolph club and all others who are interested in calf club work are invited to attend the organization meeting.

Seek Important Honor

While a definite program of activities will not be decided upon until the meeting Thursday night, it is regarded as certain that the Rudolph club will have an exhibit at the Marshfield fair, with the possibility that when a date for the Stevens Point fair is fixed it will be decided to enter that also. At Marshfield the Rudolph club will compete with other Wood county calf clubs for the honor of representing the county with an exhibit at the National Dairy Show to be held at Milwaukee late in September. One or more Wood county calves will be entered in this big show, and the Rudolph club members are anxious to have the distinction fall to them.

Has Enviable Record

The Rudolph club has made an enviable record in recent years, and calves raised by members have won numerous honors in exhibitions of dairy cattle. Prospects are fully as good, if not better than in the past this year it is said, and members of the organization are looking forward to new honors.

Says West Holds Lead in Inter-Denominational Work

(By Associated Press)

Madison, July 7.—The west has taken the lead in the inter-denominational church movement in the opinion of clergy representing 10 denominations expressed at the national inter-church rural conference here today. Inter-denominational work will be one of the main topics discussed during the remainder of the conference.

Today's session marked the opening of the second week of conferences to deal with rural church problems and to work out a plan for administering relief in farming communities.

Specific recommendations for rural church difficulties will be undertaken during the week. The conference council, constituted of representatives of the various denominations, will make its report Wednesday or Thursday and this will be considered by the convention as a whole. Final reports will be submitted to the national bodies of the denominations.

Mrs. John Miller Dies Saturday P.M. at Home of Her Son

Mrs. John Miller, for twenty-nine years a resident of the south side, died Saturday afternoon, at about two o'clock, at the home of her son, Frank Giesler, after an illness of four years. She was 84 years, 5 months and 18 days of age when death ended her.

Deceased was born in Switzerland January 17, 1840, and came to this country 47 years ago and for the past 29 years has lived at the south side.

Mrs. Miller was the mother of nine children all of whom, except Frank Giesler with whom she made her home, are dead. Surviving relatives other than Mr. Giesler are her husband, John Miller, a brother, Fred Aubert, Switzerland, and one sister, Catherina Gade, Switzerland, eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock from the Giesler home and at 9:30 o'clock from SS. Peter and Paul Catholic church. Rev. Father Jos. Ciszewski will officiate. Burial will take place in Calvary cemetery.

PLAN WISCONSIN DAIRY ASSOCIATION

FORMATION OF CENTRAL MARKETING ORGANIZATION WILL TAKE PLACE AT MEETING JULY 14

Watertown, Wis., July 7.—Wisconsin dairymen will be organized into a centralized marketing association, similar to those existing in California for the marketing of oranges, grape fruit, raisins, tobacco and other products, and known as the "centralized plan" of marketing, at a conference of the Wisconsin Standard Dairy Marketing committee here July 14, State Senator John C. Schuman, chairman of the committee, announced here today.

Tentative plans and contracts have been submitted to the state department of markets, College of Agriculture and attorneys on cooperative marketing, according to Chairman Schuman, and the committee has determined upon its plan of organization. Discussions on the plan have been held at dairy meetings over the state also.

The plan of action adopted by the committee was selected after a survey of cooperative and dairy organizations throughout the country, Mr. Schuman said. The plan embodies a standard dairying system, it is said.

Investigation of the committee revealed, Schuman said that efforts to build marketing agencies by deferating existing local associations have failed in a majority of cases. He said the plan which apparently has been found most successful in that built upon what is known as the California or Centralized plan. The plan is built from the producer up he, declared. New England dairymen already are reorganizing and adopting the plan, with producers in six states included it is said. Similar organizations are being perfected in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Texas, Alabama, California and Canada.

Bullet Lodged in Head Fatal to Rhinelander Boy

Rhinelander, July7.—Jacob Seidel, 4, died today from a rifle wound accidently inflicted, by an 8-year-old playmate boy on June 11. From that time on a 22 calibre bullet was lodged in the boy's brain, surgeons being unable to locate it. The boy, who was slowly recovering, suffered a relapse Saturday.

Can He Win?

SENATOR ROBERT M. LA FOLLETTE

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer

Cleveland, Ohio—Until the Conference for Progressive Political Action actually began to gather in considerable numbers here [illegible] opening July 4, none was [illegible] to predict an out-and-and victory at the polls for Robert M. La Follette.

That he might succeed in throwing the presidential choice [illegible] of Representatives was [illegible] Progressives hoped for.

But with the gathering in Cleveland and an exchange of information among the delegates [illegible] Bright conditions in many parts of the country, a rapid strengthening of confidence began to show itself.

That La Follette will have a majority over both the old party candidates in November is perhaps too much to expect, his supporters concede. But that he will have a plurality was the prophesy freely made on the floor of the Cleveland gathering. If so, despite the triangular division of strength in Congress, the Progressives venture the guess that such a score will have been thrown into the old line politicians there's a chance the earlier presidential candidate will win the contest.

CONVENTION ACTS AFTER FIVE ROLL CALLS ARE FUTILE

some of the McAdoo delegations were showing signs of disintegration.

The Smith forces, he said, were standing firm. McAdoo leaders expressed the same sentiment.

All sorts of opinions were expressed as the delegates assembled. Chairman Walsh presented the report of the Sunday conference containing the two proposals advanced by 15 minority candidates and by McAdoo leaders. It was up to the convention to decide what it was going to do about it. A state motion from the floor to change the rules would require a two-third vote.

The managers covered the convention floor to find where the favorite sons delegates were going to. It developed that those released from their pledges and the sentiment of the individual delegates seemed to stand with their native sons.

The New York forces were working tooth and nail to pull the scattered forces of minority candidates over to Smith.

At 11:25 Daylight Saving Time, Chairman Walsh rapped for order. The Rev. William L. Phillips, assistant rector of the "Little Church Around the Corner," offered the invocation.

Sympathy to President

Charles Wilson of West Virginia asked unanimous consent for consideration of a resolution to express the sympathy of the convention to the president and Mrs. Coolidge in the critical illness of their son. It was adopted by a rising vote of approval. Then Chairman Walsh asked unanimous consent that the report by himself and Chairman Hull on the over Sunday conference be delivered. There was no objection on the report read by the secretary.

It reported that the conference had been held and that a document, testified to by action of the 15 minority candidates in relieving their delegates, had been taken. The text of the article was introduced in the report and read to the convenion.

Peking Deputies Get Nervous as Ex-Ruler Sighs for Throne

Peking.—Four million dollars a year is the pension guaranteed by the Peking government to the Manchu emperor, Hsuan Tung, who abdicated in 1912 when the republic was established. He lives in retirement in the Imperial City, within the walls of Peking. He retains his imperial title and the formalities of the Manchu court, although virtually a prisoner.

A bill was introduced recently in the lower house of the Chinese parliament to abrogate the imperial title. It is supported by some 50 delegates, who allege that Hsuan Tung is planning a movement to restore the monarchy.

Warn Farmers to Ground Fence Wires in Pastures

Madison, Wis.—Agriculture experts are sending warnings to the farmers of the state to ground their wire fences to prevent the electrocution of cattle by lightning.

It is pointed out that wire fences attract lightning bolts and that cattle have a tendency to gather at fences during a storm. With a wire fence grounded every 20 feet, it is pointed out that the cattle would be in no danger from lightning unless it struck very near the spot where the cattle were grouped.

Will Hear Auburndale Phone Case Thursday

Hearing will be held by the state railroad commission at Marshfield on July 10 in the case of the Auburndale Telephone company against the Wisconsin Telephone company. The case is understood to be based on a dispute over the routing of calls.

Other hearings to be held by the commission soon include one at Wausau on Milwaukee road grade crossings on Wednesday, July 16 and one at Marinette on July 18 on an application of the Marinette and Menominee Paper company to rebuild and enlarge a dam over the Menominee river.

Alfalfa on Light Soils Producing Good Crops

Experimentals plots of alfalfa planted on light soil farms in south eastern section of Wood county are producing unexpectedly good results in a majority of cases, it is reported by County Agent R. A. Peterson, and farmers who have inspected the fields are enthusiastic over the future of the crop in this section. Altogether satisfactory results were obtained on about 75 per cent of the plots, Mr. Peterson says, and farmers in the light soil area are expected to plant greatly increased acreages of the crop next year.
